How the Delta Turning Point is Affecting American Sentiment and Behavior
Resonate COVID-19 and Emerging Trends Consumer Flash Study
Late July/Early August 2021 - Wave 18,
INTRODUCTION

While 18% of Americans feel that life is already back to normal, 29% now believe it will take over a year, a 44% increase since June. What’s more, 12% say it will never be back to normal.

The Delta variant is putting a halt to many consumer plans and bringing a return to the rise in concern over health and economic consequences of the pandemic. But this time, there’s a clear divide between those who are resuming caution and those who are resuming business as usual.

47% still plan to travel domestically in the next 90 days, and 68% prefer to shop in store, an 18% increase since June.

We may not be out of the pandemic woods yet, but this resurgence is different. What does that mean for your brand or organization? It means you need access to the freshest data to connect with consumers where they are today, not last month.

The Resonate Ignite platform allows you to actively track the behaviors, values, and preferences driving your customers’ decisions. Use platform to unify and enrich your first-party data, with Resonate privacy-safe data and start driving better decisions that capitalize on the evolving market dynamics.

This report contains the latest research brands & agencies need to inform marketing, CX, product development, creative, messaging and more. Create marketing that engages customers where they are today, as mask mandates are dropped, families reunite, and schoolchildren look towards a fall that could involve a return to the classroom.

Resonate’s proprietary coronavirus and current events data is released monthly, and connected to our core data set with thousands of critical consumer data points. This latest Recent Events Connected Flash Study was fielded between July 14 and August 2, 2021, and scaled to 230 million U.S. consumers.

ONLINE PRIVACY
Americans question their personal online privacy protection

There are many ways in which a person can use the internet, for example visiting websites, downloading apps on a computer or mobile device, or having internet connected devices within the home. Do you believe that you are doing enough to protect your privacy?

- Yes, I am doing enough: 46.0%
- No, I would like to be doing more: 42.2%
- Don’t know, unsure if I am doing enough: 34.7%

Survey periods:

MOST AMERICANS BELIEVE PRIVACY PROTECTION IS A SHARED RESPONSIBILITY

There are some people who believe that internet privacy should be the responsibility of the individual (limiting the information that they provide online and being mindful of what they download), whereas others believe that online privacy is the responsibility of large technology companies (for example, Apple, Facebook, or Google) being selective of the information that they take in, how they secure that information, and who they provide that information to. Who do you believe should be ultimately responsible for protecting the online privacy of you and your friends and family?

- The individual using the internet is solely responsible
- The individual using the internet is mostly responsible, but internet companies play a small role
- The individual using the internet is responsible, but internet companies play a role
- Individuals using the internet and internet companies are equally responsible
- Internet companies are responsible, but the individual still play a role
